WIDOW, TINY SON SURVIVE

Cow Victim, Too; Calves
Escape Injury

Francis Little, 29, employe on the Edward B. Hay farm, Madison township, was killed instantly at 5:50 p. m. Thursday when struck by lightning while he was standing in the door of a cattle barn.

Mr. Little had been milking, and it is believed he had just hung up a pail. Sheriff Charles Radcliff, who investigated the accident with Coroner C. E. Bowers, believes Mr. Little was standing under a spouting. The lightning, he thinks, struck the building, was carried along the spouting and was grounded through Mr. Little. Clothing was torn from his body. He was terribly burned, the officials said.

Valuable Cow Struck

A valuable cow, standing at the opposite end of the building, was killed. Calves in the shed were uninjured, the sheriff said. The Hay farm is about one mile north of the Madison township school building.

Little resided with his brother
James, about six miles south of Groveport. He is survived by his widow, Wanda; a four-week old son, Jerry Lee; two other brothers, Henry of Columbus and Charles of South Bloomfield, and his father,
William, Commercial Point.

Mr. Little's body will be taken to his home Saturday morning.
Funeral services will be held in the Routown United Brethren church Sunday at 2 p. m. with burial in the Darbyville cemetery by the A.
J. Hott Co.

Coroner Bowers returned a verdict of accidental death. The electrical storm struck the northern part of Pickaway county and the southern part of Franklin county
Thursday evening. Circleville's highest temperature Thursday was 91 degrees. Showers were predicted for Friday with continued warm weather.

WAGE-HOUR ACT DELAYED

Southern Forces Refuse to Vote in Caucus

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(UP)—Congress moved at top speed under 96-degree heat today to wind up a 230-day session by tomorrow night.

Differences between the house and senate over housing legislation presented the only major problem to be settled before adjournment. The house substituted virtually a new bill for the senate measure, but leaders predicted that a conference committee would reach an agreement soon.

Conservative southern Democrats killed all hope of action this session on the administration's controversial wage and hours bill. They blocked efforts to hold a house Democratic caucus last night to bind members to action on the measure before adjournment.

Quorum Lacking
More than 25 southern Democratic representatives sat outside the caucus room while supporters of a motion to force the bill from the house rules committee vainly tried to rally a quorum. The best they could do was 157 members, eight short of the required number.

The session neared an end during probably the hottest week of a humid Washington summer.
Many members already had departed for cooler climates. Some fearing the heat, were attending sessions only when absolutely necessary. One senator, Pat Mc-Carran, D., Nev., was in naval hospital for a rest. Yesterday's 96-degree heat, hottest of the year, brought death to one person in the District of Columbia and prostrated five others.

TWO MEN JAILED
AFTER DUEL PUT ON LONG PAROLE

William Caldwell, 29, and Edward Hamilton, 32, both of Wayne township, charged with shooting with intent to wound, admitted the charges Friday in common pleas court and were placed under parole for two years, by Judge J. W. Adkins.

The charges grew out of a gun duel last April 6, in which Hamilton was shot in the left knee, causing him to have a stiff leg.

Container Corporation's Yard is "City of Straw"

Six Thousand Tons Already in Ricks With 7,500 More to
Be Placed; Single Day's Record—24,500 Bales

The Container Corporation's city of straw, to include 13,500 tons this year, is about half completed.

To date approximately 6,000 tons have been placed in the ricks at the plant, Robert L. Ekins, plant manager, said Friday. Work on the ricks will continue until the second week of October.

Considerable change has been made this year in the layout of the ricks. All will be 81 feet square, 33 feet high and spaced 50 feet apart for protection against fire. In previous years the ricks were longer.

Mr. Ekins said each of the 15 full ricks will hold 24,500 bales or 835 tons. Two half-ricks will be erected. The record for placing straw in ricks so far this year is 8,800 bales in one day.
The ricks will contain about 1-500 tons more than in previous years.

Refugees From China
Find Quakes in Manila

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 20—(UP)—A series of three violent quakes, following each other in rapid succession, shook Manila tonight. The city was thrown into wild confusion. Walls of modern office buildings were cracked and water mains burst. Hundreds of persons, including refugees from war-torn Shanghai were imperilled but apparently there were no casualties.

Refugees from China were dis-embarking from the liner President Jefferson at the time of the first shock at 8 p. m., Manila time.
About 400 of the former residents of Shanghai were crowded on pier seven or leaving the boat when the shock, accompanied by a deep, rumbling roar, was felt.
Several of the passengers fainted.

The second shock followed 20 minutes later but was of lesser intensity, as was the third, which was felt at 10:33 p. m.

Weather observatory officials said the first shock was of "intensity six," described as severe.
There probably would be a succession of shocks of lessening intensity throughout the night, they said.

Telephone and power services were disrupted in many parts of the city and wide sections of Manila were plunged into darkness momentarily.

The rumbling of the quake was accompanied by the sharp sound of breaking glass as store windows were shattered.

Elevators jammed in downtown buildings and the panic of persons trapped in the lifts added to the confusion. A two-inch crack split the front of the modern Insular Life building.

The Rev. August Schneider will officiate. Burial will be in the adjoining cemetery. Friends may call at the Whitel funeral home in Kingston until Saturday noon when the body will be taken to the home in Kinderhook.

Mrs. Metcalfe is survived by her husband, a one-month old daughter, Kathryn May, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Behman Drum of Bethel.

A verdict of suicide was announced Friday by Coroner C. E. Bowers.

associate justice of the supreme court, took the oath of office last night from Charles Pace, finance clerk of the senate, Black's office revealed today.

Black was sworn in shortly after he submitted his resignation from the senate to Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama, who appointed his wife Dixie Bibb Graves, to occupy Black's senate seat until his successor is elected.

Black will take another oath of office before the supreme court before he takes his place on the bench at the beginning of the next court term in October.

ANOTHER VICTIM
OF POISON PLOT
BELIEVED FOUND

CINCINNATI, Aug. 20—(UP)— Police planned an autopsy today on the body of what they believed to be the 12th victim of poison administered by a female "blue-beard."

Mrs. Ollie Luella Koehler, 79, was the latest to die in what police think was a plot to steal the savings of elderly persons.

Mrs. Koehler died yesterday, a month after police said she had eaten ice cream given her by Mrs.
Anna Marie Hahn, 31-year-old blonde charged with the poison murders of two elderly men.

Prosecutor Dudley M. Outcalt termed the deaths "one of the biggest mass murders in this country." He claimed that Mrs. Hahn —"Madame Bluebeard" the police call her—received between $50,000 and $70,000 from persons who died after she had helped make them
"comfy."

Outcalt said that investigations showed Mrs. Hahn had purchased enough poison to "kill half the town."

DYER, KILLER OF THREE GIRLS, MAY VISIT SCENE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20—(UP)— Trial of Albert Dyer, charged with despoiling and murdering three little girls, was delayed today while Superior Judge Thomas P. White decided whether it would be exposing the prisoner to a lynch mob if he were taken to the scene of the crime.

Defense attorneys demanded that court be adjourned and recon-vened at a lonely gully in the Baldwin hills near Englewood where the ravaged and strangled bodies of the little girls were found.

ACT TERMED SURPRISE

Council Expected To Put
Petition on Ballot

The light rate problem was back in Mayor W. J. Graham's lap Friday after a surprise move Thursday night by sponsors of a referendum against a 10-year contract.

Instead of filing the 10 petitions with the city auditor, as provided by state statutes, they filed them with Mayor Graham to be submitted to council as provided under the Ohio constitution.

Backers of the referendum against rate contract with the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., admitted Friday the "surprise move" was planned earlier in the campaign, but no announcement was made.

Ordinance Copy Filed

The forms of the petitions complied with regulations established by the statutes. A copy of the ordinance, passed by council with a four to two vote, was filed with the city auditor.

Leaders in the drive explained in the petitions that the word
"mayor" was inserted instead of
"city auditor."

T. A. Renick, attorney for the men attacking the ordinance, explained that under constitutional law the mayor submits the referendum to council. It is mandatory that council pass an ordinance submitting the question to the electors, he said.

Renick said constitutional law specifies no special form of petition, but that there is a difference in the number of signatures needed. Under the statutes signatures of 10 percent of the voters at the last election for mayor are needed. "We have plenty of signatures for both forms," Renick explained. The petitions bear 670 signatures.

the six Russians lost in a four-motored plane on a projected non-

Francisco.

Eskimos reported that a Russian ice breaker, probably the Krassin, was sighted far to the westward

The fliers here did not speak
English and it was difficult to ob-

Weather conditions continued unfavorable for the searchers.

DAMAGE ACTION AGAINST COUNTY
NEARS ITS CLOSE

Arguments in the $5,000 damage action of Carl Wiggins, Route 4, against the county commissioners, were expected to start in common pleas court Friday afternoon.

Prosecutor George E. Gerhardt and Ray W. Davis, his assistant, rested their case Friday morning.

Witnesses called for the county commissioners Thursday included
Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Mowery, Wayne Luckhart and Dillon Bockert, Salt-creek township; Sadie Bell, Ash-ville, and Hiram Lama, Fairfield county. Those called Friday morning were Lee Bochart, Saltcreek township; Willson Spangler, Tarl-ton, and Ray Noonan, Clinton street.

Wiggins sued for injuries alleged to have been received in October, 1936 when an auto in which he was riding was in a mishap at the bridge over Salt creek near Tarl-ton. He charges the bridge collapsed.

Attorneys for the commissioners allege the boys in the auto had been drinking.

Tokyo Determined to Force
Foe "To Knees"

SHANGHAI, Aug. 20—
(UP)—A shell hit the U.S.S.
Augusta, flagship of Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commandant of the Asiatic fleet, tonight, killing one person and injuring eighteen.

It could not be determined immediately whether the shell was fired by Japanese or Chinese forces. Information was lacking whether the casualties involved American officers, enlisted men, or both.

The Augusta has been anchored off Shanghai, where Admiral Yarnell has been cooperating with American military and consular authorities evacuating American nationals from the war-torn Shanghai international settlement.

The sailor killed was Frederick
J. Falgout, seaman second class.

By UNITED PRESS

Big scale battle plans appeared today to be unfolding in the undeclared Japanese-China war.

Severe fighting, although between comparatively minor units, marked the Shanghai situation. A hot revival of air raids ensued.
Penetration by Chinese guerrilla troops into Japanese lines in the Hongkew section of the international settlement, led the declaration of martial law there by the defenders. New fires broke out.

Minor Fights Over

Every indication was that from now on, there will be a rapid development in the clash of massed forces, as opposed to the minor units engaged.

For the first time, the Tokyo government voiced a determination, through Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, to beat China to her knees.

Gen. Chang Chih-Tsung, commanding the Chinese army at Shanghai, significantly asserted his belief that operations of Nip-ponese forces "will probably end soon and successfully," — but he added a prediction that the war, as a whole, would probably be long-drawn out — further prediction of the ultimate mass scale of the combat to come.

Indications that the Chinese were preparing an intensive bombing of the Whangpoo river to rid the waterway of enemy warships, came in a Chinese demand for neutrals to withdraw from that area of Shanghai. It was rejected by foreign governments, including the United States.

Japanese Ready

In the Tientsin-Peking sector, the Japanese gave indication of the apparent strength and readiness to strike in force, by inaugurating suppression of all Chinese activities of which they disapprove. Peiping reported a Japanese plan to make North China autonomous.

JUSTICE COURTS ARE RESTRICTED IN AUTO CASES

New Law Declares Officials Can Hear Charges Only in Home Townships

OTHER ACTS EFFECTIVE

Organized Automobile Clubs Favor Jurisdiction Bill

County-wide jurisdiction of Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland and other justices in Ohio to try automobile traffic violation cases was ended Friday when the Lipscher act, passed during the regular legislative session, became operative as law. A 90-day referendum period has ended.

Members of the sheriff's office are expected to use the courts of justice of the peace in the townships in which arrests are made as a result of the law.

Under the new law, justices have jurisdiction in speeding cases and other traffic law violations only in the townships where they were elected.

The law, sponsored by Sen. Maurice Lipscher, D., Mahoning county, had the backing of organized automobile clubs in the state.

Other new laws effective Friday included a new, uniform extradition code and an act authorizing Ohio to enter into agreements with other states for the supervision of paroled prisoners allowed to leave the state where they had been imprisoned.

Junior Fair Aid to 4-H Club Work, Writer Claims

BY JOSEPHINE WOLFE
Junior Member in Charge
Girls' 4-H Clubs

To the young folk of rural communities no greater organization than 4-H Clubs is at their service to help them build for a happy, profitable home and community.

Outside of church and school, probably nothing is more influential in building a rural youth's character and personality than 4-H work. It makes every boy and girl conscientious-minded about his work. It provides a worthwhile recreational program. It supplies correct information. It develops courage, vision and faith.

Probably food and clothing clubs are most beneficial to the girls. Girls are offered a wide variety in the food club, learning the art of cooking everything common to them in many pleasing ways. In this club the health "H" is stressed greatly. In the clothing club one has the opportunity to show her artistic ability as well as the pleasure of creating something which is attractive and useful.

As a 4-H Club Member, one has the opportunity of attending training camps, club conventions, and the like. Here one is instructed in leadership, solving the problems that face him, and learning to use his leisure time creatively. A week spent in any of these is of inestimable value. The association with persons from all over the state keeps one informed of the activities other than those that are near.

Probably the most valuable reward of 4-H work is taking part in the Junior Fair Exhibit at the Pumpkin Show. Here the work of one whole season is put on display and is judged. Those ranking highest in their work are given worthwhile premiums. The purpose of these exhibits is to show the public the type of work done through the 4-H department, and to make the boys and girls feel the importance of their work. Four-H has profited through the organization of a Junior Fair because it has been given a large responsibility of helping make the fair grow.

The Thomas farm is two miles west of Circleville on State route 22.

GAS SALE BILL HATED AFTER SENATOR ACTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(UP)—

An objection by Senator Edward Burke of Nebraska, today had blocked senate passage of the Brown-Lea bill, regulating interstate transportation and sale of gas, which Ohio cities have supported for two years.

The bill was before the senate yesterday under the unanimous consent rule and was beaten despite pleas for its passage by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana, and Senator Robert Bulkley, Ohio. The measure had been counted on as an important aid to Ohio cities in that it would allow regulation to extend beyond state lines into West Virginia, now supplying a great part of Ohio's gas. Senator Wheeler said he would attempt to get the measure before the senate at the earliest opportunity.

DUNATHAN NEW BOWLING GREEN COLLEGE PREXY

COLUMBUS, Aug. 20—(UP)—Homer R. Dunathan, president of Findlay college, will be appointed president of Bowling Green state university, it was learned here today.

Dunathan conferred with Governor Davey here earlier this week and at that time was assured of the appointment, it was said.

Bowling Green trustees were scheduled to meet this week, but postponed the meeting to an indefinite date.

Once the Mecca of old prospectors and the motley crew of adventurers, bad men and other characters who follow the irresistible lure of the yellow dust, the town is now deserted and remains a typical Western frontier town which no art director could reproduce. The cast of "Rustlers' Valley" is headed by William Boyd, George Hayes and Russell Hayden and includes Muriel Evans, Stephen Morris, John Beach and others.

MARINES REACH SHANGHAI AFTER SPEEDY VOYAGE

"Where's War?", Helmeted Men Cry After Arriving Aboard Liner

800 AMERICANS LEAVE

Sandbag Barricades to Be Armed By Soldiers

SHANGHAI, Aug. 20—(UP)—One hundred and two United States marines from Cavite, Philippine islands, helmeted and khaki-clad, arrived in Shanghai today, shouting:

"Where's the war?"

They were the first of 400 marine reinforcements for the 4th regiment here, and came in the liner President Hoover which made a full steam race from Manila.

As the marines, happy, grinning broadly, came up the Whangpoo to seek "the war," 800 American women and children went down the river to board the liner and sail for Manila.

The marines came up the river in the navy tender Reactor. They poured into a dozen marine trucks, lined up on the water front at the customs jetty where they landed, and drove off to barracks. There they joined the first battalion, which was under full strength.

To Aid In Defense

The reinforcements will join the men of the 4th in manning sandbag barricades on the rim of the foreign settlement and patrolling the American defense sector.

That the situation in Shanghai is a dangerous one was evident when the "jirenes" came ashore. There was only a small crowd, mostly Americans, to greet them because settlement police had cleared the waterfront of civilians, in fear of a Chinese air raid on Japanese warships which anchored off the international waterfront to fire on Chinese positions and planes.

But there were several truckloads of marines from the U. S. cruiser Augusta on the waterfront to exchange jeers with the arrivals.

Japanese warships were firing at urgent rate at Chinese bombing planes as the American women and children refugees assembled at the customs jetty to go down river to the big Dollar liner awaiting them.

The tender moved out at 8:20 a. m. The Edsall and Parrott, carrying some third class passengers, joined it and all three ships went speedily and without incident down to the President Hoover. The liner took aboard its refugees and turned out into the sea toward Manila.

Gauss Commended

Morale in the American colony was high. Nerves were becoming adjusted to the tension and the constant din of firing.

American Consul Clarence E. Gauss won high praise for his handling of a difficult situation.

CRICKET CROP GROWN

ELKO, Nev. (UP)—Edgar Littlefield drove into the country and brought back a load of rich, black dirt for his flower garden. Today, instead of flowers, he had a wonderful crop of young Mormon crickets, hatched from thousands of eggs in the soil by the hot weather.

Roof Shows Relic

Joseph R. Roof, showed us a relic, which in by-gone days, served a useful purpose. It was known as a reaping machine sickle guard and was a crude piece of casting but answered its purpose in those days, about 75 years ago, or more, when wheat harvesting machines, such as we have today, were not thought of. This harvester was purchased in Urbana, Ohio, in 1856 by John Noecker, great grandfather of Cecil Noecker down on Route 23. It was known as the "McCormick" and was a great clumsy affair and when in action required four horses to pull it. The driver, and what was known as the "rake-off" man, sat near the center of the machine on a double seat. The "rake-off" man with his heavy rake pushed the fallen wheat from a platform connected to the sickle bar. But this was really a good and rapid method of getting the wheat harvested in RECENT postmortem operation on a Philadelphia mother to save her unborn baby prompts the disclosure of a similar case at Chicago. Physicians revealed they performed a post-mortem operation on 26-year-old Mary Norman two minutes after she died. Mary Norman's baby, Eldon, shown above, is alive and now is nearly three months old. He lives with relatives in Chardon, Neb. The Philadelphia mother's baby lived two days after the Caesarian operation.

47 COUNTY MEN ON HYBRID CORN TOUR THURSDAY

Various Crosses of Crop Shown to Farmers During Visits

HIGH YIELD EXPECTED

State Expert Discusses Many Factors

Forty-seven farmers participated in the hybrid corn tour Thursday afternoon. The purpose of the tour was to acquaint farmers with the various crosses of hybrid corn being grown in the county.

Stops were made at the following farms: Homer Quillen and Son, Wilbur Brinker and Simon Rife, all in Walnut township; Florence Teegardin, Madison township, and Roger Hedges, Harrison township. Farmers inspected hybrid corn being grown both for market and for 1938 seed.

F. K. Blair, county extension agent, reports about 6,000 acres of hybrid corn in the county this year. "The corn gives promise of a high yield," he said.

A representative of the farm crops department of Ohio State university participated in the tour, explaining the advantages and disadvantages of the different hybrid corns.

Governor of Alabama Names Wife to Senate

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(UP)—Dixie Bibb Graves, a slender and soft-spoken southerner, brought a rich background of political and social activity today to the United States senate seat vacated by elevation of Hugo L. Black to the supreme court.

Appointed by her cousin and husband, Alabama's Gov. Bibb Graves, immediately after Black had resigned, she arranged to be sworn in this afternoon.

Mrs. Graves, known throughout Alabama as "Miss Dixie," will be escorted to the rostrum to take the oath by Sen. John H. Bankhead, D., Ala. Then she will take her seat several desks away from the senate's other woman member, Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway, D., Ark.

The induction ceremony today will give Mrs. Graves a quick start on what may be a more active political career than that attempted by the other three women who have served in the senate.

Friends from the south, pointing to her active interest in political and social work, predicted that Mrs. Graves might be a candidate in the coming primary election to elect a new senator, although a statement by her husband tended to discount such a plan. Her family has been prominent in political affairs for generations. Her great-great-grandfather was Alabama's first governor.

Mrs. Graves, exhausted but happy after receiving congratulations last night remarked with the political sagacity of a veteran that she would save her statements on congressional affairs until she found out what it was all about.

But she did let it be understood that she has a great interest in social questions such as dominated the legislative career of her predecessor.

OPEN LETTERS

TO BICYCLE RIDERS

BOYS, GIRLS: Many of you are taking too many chances for your own safety or for that of pedestrians who take their lives in their own hands by walking uptown after dark. Circleville in the last few months has become bicycle-minded with older folk as well as boys and girls enjoying riding the vehicles, but something will have to be done soon to curb the Barney Oldfields who ride bicycles through the streets of the city after dark as though they were in wide and open spaces where there could be no danger to anyone. No fatalities have taken place yet, but something is bound to happen unless bicycle riders mend their ways. Persons walking along streets have to dodge time after time to escape being hit; motorists not only have other cars to contend with now, but they, too, must try to evade striking someone peddling a 'bike' down the wrong side or in the middle of the street. One suggestion has been made that bears merit, and that is to bar all bicycles from the city's streets after 8 p. m. It is usually after this hour that whole companies of youthful persons ride up and down the main thoroughfares, defying any motorists or pedestrian to stay in their paths. Some parents have gone so far as to deny their children the use of their bicycles after night, and others might follow this practice to guarantee the safety of the children. City officials have said that bicycles might be licensed, but this seems to be going a little too strong. However, unless the boys and girls who make riding a menace, cease their actions something will be done soon to keep them off the streets. It is always better to remedy a wrong before a tragedy happens than it is after a boy or girl has paid for carelessness with a life. A little common sense on the part of the bicycle possessors will go a long way toward an improved condition.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNCILMEN

GENTLEMEN: Is more rigid regulation of Circleville's beer parlors needed? There has been an unusual amount of trouble in certain parlors this Summer. Fights have been staged in several places of business resulting in arrests. There is no reason for such conditions existing in this city. I would suggest you appoint a committee to investigate the situation and

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

By CHARLES RADCLIFF

UP AT THE usual hour after an uninterrupted seven-hour sleep, grateful that the telephone did not jingle once after I crawled into bed, a very, very unusual thing in the daily life of a law officer. First thought in the a. m. being a pleasant one of the success of the fish fry held by the Hebron church in Monroe township the evening before, this affair being another of the many which either I or one of the boys covers each annum. Remained at the wee church, where did attend many of our noble residents in years gone by, until after midnight to help protect the receipts of the session against any person or persons who might have thought the church folk had taken in too much of the coin of the realm.

Breakfast the usual hearty one since a sheriff never can tell where or when his next meal will be provided, calls to wrecks, burglaries, etc., oftentimes taking one through the midday meal and sometimes far into the night. Deputy Weaver on a chicken theft call north of the city early in the day, and not returning until late in the afternoon, probably went without the much-needed noon-day lunch. Did take inventory to learn if

Dwight had tried to wreck the courthouse—or himself—again with his tricycle, if everything was okeh in the jail, never giving a thought to the food needed for the day that being capably handled by the good wife and Mrs. Neuding, her capable aide. Then through the courthouse to the office where did greet Deputies Fissell and Armstrong, ready for what the day might hold forth, the former to be assigned routine work and the latter taking over in the courtroom for the ailing, but improving Jake Young, Judge Adkins' able bailiff. Bob likes this job, it being mainly listening to a damage action against the county because of a bridge wreck in his part of the county, and calling witnesses to the stand.

Bowed in fine friendliness to Judge Adkins reporting for the trial, the first with a jury for a long while because of the noise created by the workmen in charge of the courthouse addition, to Prosecutor Gerhardt, on hand to defend the commissioners in the case, and to ex-Prosecutor Davis, who is helping the county. Then came the jurors, all fine Fayette countians, counsel for the plaintiff, and the trial under way again.

The sheriff's day varies. No two are the same. None is mo-work out regulations that will keep these establishments more peaceful. Drunken brawls in Circleville's downtown district are no credit to the city.

CIRCUITEER

TO CAMPERS

FRIENDS: Welcome to Circleville for your annual camp meeting at the Mount of Praise. Splendid programs have been arranged for your sessions. I am sure your visit here will be enjoyable. Visit the downtown district, and Circleville's industrial plants while you are here. Many of you do not realize what a really fine city we have. This district is rich in history. You will find Logan Elm a most interesting Park to visit. Shop in our modern stores and see the many bargains merchants are offering during the camp period.

CIRCUITEER

TO LEGIONNAIRES

VETERANS: The recent Ohio department convention in Columbus should have inspired you to take steps toward a rejuvenation of your Circleville post. I understand that several times during the last year there have not been enough members of the post present to conduct a meeting. This does the organization no good at all. A nominating committee has been appointed to choose officers for the next year. I urge that committee to do its best to place enthusiastic and energetic leaders at the head of the organization. The country needs the Legion and Circleville needs a progressive post.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNTY OFFICIALS

FRIENDS: The plan for one of Circleville's blanket projects under W. P. A. including sidewalk, street and drainage improvements, has been completed. This project, if approved, will furnish work to 60 men for eight months. County and township officials were asked to prepare an extensive project for improvement of roads. I have heard of no developments in the program since the time it was suggested. There will probably be severe cuts in the W. P. A. program during the corn cutting and husking season. What about this Winter when numerous families will be seeking relief? You have an opportunity to make improvements with federal aid and thus relieve the unemployment situation. Better take advantage of the offer.

TO ROUNDTOWNERS

CITIZENS: Mayor Graham and the police department deserve the co-operation of residents in their campaign to clear Circleville of peddlers. Many have been ordered out this Summer. When escorted to the police station and informed that they must obtain licenses, they waste no time in departing. License fees have been placed high enough to keep them on the move. Circleville stores carry quality merchandise, and guarantee it. Peddlers are here today, gone tomorrow. Residents should notify the police department about peddlers in their neighborhoods. Officers are unable to cover all sections of the city at various times of the day. Do your part in keeping Circleville business in Circleville.

CHAPTER 28

ANETKA was adamant. All of Mari's pleas for her help, her insistence on Anetka sharing her glory were to no avail. Mari must go on but Anetka was going to retire.

For Mari there was fame; Anetka would have marriage to her Sergei who had, at last, found a position as a wine salesman.

Anetka was tired. She had enjoyed working with Mari, was grateful for what the girl had brought her and firm on the stand that she would take only her share of profits to date. It was only fair, she pointed out, that Mari should enjoy the full fruits of her labor. And only right that, having served her purpose, she should go out of the picture.

"But now I'm afraid," Mari insisted. "I leaned on you so much. I'm afraid to undertake this big thing."

Anetka smiled. "I am what you call the morale support. I will always encourage you, Mari. You have the head as well as the talent. Those bankers, they are no fools. They know as much of what you have accomplished as we do. If they trust you and you trust yourself, you have nothing to worry about. With this money, you can hire the people who will advise you. You have the American lawyer, the American secretary and your own, wise little business head. Me, I am scatter brain, yes?"

"You are not! Sometimes you held me back when I wanted to charge more for a frock but that is the very thing I need you for. That is the quality of prudence which I do not have. Tony . . . a man I once knew in America . . . told me that I was too impulsive. He was afraid that someday my impulsiveness would get me into trouble. And, Anetka, my trouble is that I don't know when I'm being impulsive."

Anetka shook her head. "perhaps he meant in affairs of the heart."

Mari smoothed the fingers of her glove. "He didn't know anything about my heart," she said tonelessly.

"Oh," the other woman answered in a soft voice, "so that is it! I have wondered often. . ."

Her voice trailed away and Mari knew that she expected her to say something. She had never told Anetka, or anyone else about Tony.

Anetka said very softly, "You loved him, cherie?"

"I thought I did."

"And you think you do now. That was long ago and you were very young. In every woman there are many women, Marie. Perhaps that was another woman from the one you are today. Many things have happened to you; you are not the same girl you were in America. The man we love and know and want when we are 20 is not always the man we'd know and love in later years."

Mari's eyes lifted to hers were dark pools that mirrored the reflection in her heart. She made no verbal denial of all that the older girl said, yet Anetka read it in her eyes.

Anetka's frail hand reached out to cover Mari's. "I know," she said. "Once when I was 20, there was Paul. We were married only a month when . . . when he was killed. I thought that was the end, cherie. But that was many years ago and now I have my good Sergei. For us now there is happiness. You will have it, too."

"But I don't want anyone, Anetka."

"It isn't natural, petite. A woman needs a man, at all times. Now you need a man to advise you. You need someone close to you who will understand your problems. You must take a European attitude toward marriage. It is convenient, sensible and good."

She sighed, "But you are a romantique!"

Mari laughed. "A romantic! Oh, Anetka, how little you know me! All of my romance goes into fashioning clothes. I work out all my dreams that way."

"You cannot fashion clothes 24 hours a day. Nor can you dream of them all your life. They do not live. And you are young, beautiful. You are ambitious but when you have all the things that ambition brings, what else have you?"

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Anetka, I'll get me a man. When I have my fine shop. And when I'm training him to be a fine manager, you can train him to be a fine husband. Then, when I have time and inclination, I'll marry him. Will that convince you that I am not a romantic?"

Anetka shook her head violently. "I do not want that for you. I want you to forget needles and pins and silks and satins. I want you to meet more people, more men. You are not like these nice, gay American girls I have met. You do not have fun. You must get away from Paris. You must have a vacation and do these things, dance and play tennis and . . ."

"Anetka! You talk of vacations and tennis and dancing when I must decide if I am to become what we call at home, a Big Business Woman! Later, perhaps, but now I must be away to my decisions."

"A woman must always consider business secondly, Marie. You must celebrate, you must be gay now for you have made your decision. Now you must think of parties. Did you not have parties when you were happy in New York?"

Mari shook her head. "No, darling, I have never been a gay girl. Mark is the only man I've ever known that I . . . well that made me feel party-ish."

"Do you love him?" Anetka asked directly.

"Heavens, no!"

"He is a good friend," Anetka replied knowingly, "and you must send a wireless to him at once."

"Anetka, Mark isn't a good friend. He likes to take me out when he comes to Paris but his feeling for me is superficial. I know Mark well."

"Did you know that when he brought you to me, he gave me a blank check to pay your salary until you could earn it?"

Mari gulped hard.

"Oh, Anetka! You should have told me!"

Anetka shrugged her shoulders. "Why?" she asked blandly.

"Because . . . because I wouldn't have taken it," because I wouldn't.

"Perhaps your friend in America was right, Marie. You see how you would have hurt yourself? You would have been like the ladies in books who say, 'How dare you?' and you would not be where you are today. And why shouldn't you have taken it?"

Mari felt uncomfortably like an ingenu in a Sunday school play. Nevertheless, she said primly, "Mark didn't do it out of the kindness of his heart. We both know why he did it."

Anetka's eyes lifted to the ceiling in a gesture of despair. "Marie you are not a child. Do not act like one! You must be a woman of the world and you must learn to give the benefit of the doubt to the other person." Those were almost the same words that Tony had said to her so long ago. "And why must you think that Mark is not kind because he is not serious in his manner?"

Mari thought about that after she had left Anetka. She wondered how many times she had not given the benefit of the doubt to others. Perhaps Mark had meant to be kind. She meant to be fairer in her attitude toward him.

When she sent him a wireless to his hotel at Nice that night telling him about the capital that had been offered her, she felt a thrill of anticipation hoping that her wire would bring word that he was coming to Paris.

DIET AND HEALTH

Drugs That May Be Used for Coloring Hair

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"OH! THAT mine adversary had written a book." This lamentation of Job is frequently brought to my attention, as it must be to anyone who appears in print as often as I do. My attention is called today to a statement I made some time ago to the effect that if the hair turns gray there is no way to restore it, and the only thing to do is "grin or dye it". My correspondent asked: "What shall I dye with?" So now I have to answer that question, which I should have done in the first place.

It is a very good question because there are a lot of hair dyes on the market that have caused serious trouble. And since your government does not protect you by requiring any cosmetic manufacturer to state on the label of his product is harmless, and therefore you can't tell whether what you buy in the open market is injurious or not, the best thing to do is to make up your own.

The dangerous hair dyes are the para dyes—paraphenylenediamine. It is used in many black hair dyes, and gives that walnut juice luster look to the hair. It doesn't harm everyone, but since it has caused blindness in certain cases it might be just as well to leave it alone.

Of course there is no such thing as "restoring" hair color. The customer often does not like the harsh word "dye", so the cosmetician invented the softer word restore.

For a platinum blond bleach the following can be tried.

Calcium perborate10
Sodium bicarbonate 8
Borax32
Powder soap, enough to make 100
"White henna" powder neither gives white hair nor is it henna. It is a bleach, usually made of magnesium carbonate, made into a paste with a solution of hydrogen peroxide, 17 volumes in ammonia water.

If you want a henna color take: Powdered henna10
Powdered nutgall10
Powdered walnut leaves..... 2
Alcohol24
Macerate for five hours, filter, evaporate to a residue, add:
Rose water32
Water, boiling enough to make 100
Add glycerine 2
Filter. Apply to defatted hair and wash with 10 per cent ammonia.

For light brown hair:
Indigo 90
Henna 40
For black hair:
Indigo100
Henna 20
We are warned against metallic salts for hair dyes, such as silver. Iron hair color (black) can be obtained with the following prescription:
Pyrogallol 6
Alcohol 32
Acetic acid (90 per cent)..... 0.4
Ferric chloride 1
Sugar 1
Water 16
Ether, enough to make.....100

The table was beautifully arranged, a panel of delicate variegated privet centered with a low crystal bowl of tuberose, scabiosa and delphinium, formed the decoration. Favors of miniature pottery sprinkling cans were at each place, and the place cards and the tallies used later in the afternoon at the bridge game were in keeping with the season.

Blue Stays in Fashion Parade

IT'S AMAZING—the popularity of blue. Blue usually is a spring color, but this year it has lasted through the summer and is a great pet of autumn.

A pretty little suit that is ideal for the college and business girl is shown here in two shades of blue, and worn by pretty Mary Carlisle, daughter of Anna Q. Nilsson, former screen favorite. The frock designed by Edith Head, Hollywood designer, has a smooth, straight, short skirt with a softly tailored bodice. The neckline is softened by a tied treatment accented with a monogram in royal blue.

Jacket in Royal Blue
A box jacket of royal blue velvet matches a rolling-brimmed sailor hat, all very smart for autumn.

Many of the new daytime frocks have velvet details. Daytime coats, too, often show velvet encrustations. Lyons ribbed silk velvet and velveteen is much used for coat suits. In daytime dresses there is much black velvet, also deep brown and a new grayed green called Armoire. A second new color is crimson red, and also there is a current red.

There also are quantities of velvet toques with high bows in the Paris fashion showings.

SLAUGHTER'S HOME RUN SENDS REDS TO GATE NEARER FIRST PLACE

FOUR PITCHERS GAIN EDGE OVER MINNEAPOLIS 9

Score of 5-4 Results in Rubber Contest of Important Series

CHARLEY WAGNER LOSER

St. Paul Crew Blanked By Toledo's Nelson

BY UNITED PRESS
Columbus climbed to within one game of the league leading Minneapolis Millers yesterday when Enos Slaughter pounded out a circuit clout to break a 4-4 deadlock in the eighth inning. The Red Birds won 5-4 from the Millers.

Columbus used four pitchers against Minneapolis' two in winning the close game. Charley Wagner was the losing pitcher.

Toledo blanked St. Paul 5-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Emmett Nelson. Coombs and Nelson staged a pitchers' duel until the sixth, when Toledo launched a five-hit, four-run attack.

Milwaukee put up a scrap to hold their first division berth and defeated Louisville in both games of a twin-bill, 9-6 and 4-1.

Cubs Gain on Giants as Jim Turner Wins for Bees

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(UP)—The National league race had a new slant today.

The Chicago Cubs came out of their panicky retreat and opened a drive to hold first place. The New York Giants lost a heart-breaker to the Boston Bees and slipped back to three games behind the Cubs.

Curt Davis, who's been utterly useless to the Cubs since they obtained him from the Phillies last May 21, halted the Cubs nosebleed. Desperate for pitchers Charlie Grimm played high stakes on Davis, and he came through with a 7-3 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

It was Davis' first complete winning game since July 18. He scattered 10 hits and blanked the Pirates for the last five innings. The Cubs rattled off 14 hits, with Billy Jurgens and Phil Cavarretta getting three each.

The Giants were turned back by the Bees, 2-1, in 11 innings, snapping their five-game winning streak. Jim Turner held the Giants to six hits and gained revenge for the beating Lou Fette took yesterday. Turner and Fette, roommates, went over the Giants batting order Wednesday night.

They did a thorough job as Rip-he hit a ninth inning home run to send the game into an extra inning. Milwaukee drove in three runs in the tenth.

The Kansas City Blues downed Indianapolis in both games of a doubleheader to go into a virtual tie with the fifth place team. Only eight percentage points now separate them. Kansas City took both games by scores of 9-5 and 8-2.

IKE DAVIS HITS HOMER TO WIN FOR COLA CREW

Circuit Clout in Eighth Inning Sinks Battery In Hot Battle

SEVEN FRAYS SCORELESS

Big Game Scheduled For Monday Evening

A home run by Ike Davis with a mate on base won a ball game for the Coca Cola team, and put his team nearer the second half championship of the Tri-County recreation league, Thursday evening. The score was 2 to 1 over the 136th Battery outfit.

The teams battled through seven scoreless innings before Radcliff scored with two out for the Battery lads. That run looked big until the Coca Colas ended the fray. Chuck Davis went to second on an overthrow at first base, and Ike Davis plastered the ball out of the playing field. No one was out at the time.

Bob Jones tossed them in for the winners, while Ferguson was the losing hurler.

The Coca Colas and Container Corporation will play Monday evening in an game that will decide the outcome of the second half. The Coca Colas hold one victory over the strawboarders in the second half.

PACKERS TO USE SAUER IN GAME WITH ALL-STAR

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Coaches of the college all-stars and professional Green Bay Packers argued over rules like a couple of nervous prizefighters before they agreed today to adopt a modified edition of the intercollegiate football code for their night tussle at Soldier Field Sept. 1.

The Packers, champions of the National Professional league, scored a minor victory by establishing the eligibility of their valuable fullback, George Sauer, one-time Nebraska star, who has resigned from the team to accept a coaching job at the University of New Hampshire. He played with the Packers last fall.

Except for moving the goal posts up to the goal line as the pros have it, the fourth annual all-star game will be conducted under virtually the same set of rules governing college competition.

The collegiate "five yard behind the line of scrimmage" rule, forward passing restriction, and the college kickoff rule which calls for only one kickoff regardless of whether the ball goes out of bounds, will be in effect.

JOHN H. LEWIS WINS FIRST IN HEAVY CIRCLES

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 20.—(UP)—John Henry Lewis, 181½, light-heavyweight champion, made a successful debut in the heavy-weight ranks last night by winning a 12-round decision over Italy Colonello, 200, Italy's heavy-weight champion.

The Italian carried the fight to Lewis and surprised a large attendance that paid $21,000 to jam Forbes field. Colonello got off to a bad start and Lewis stunned him with a series of rights in the first round.

When North responded with 1-No Trump and East passed, the dealer decided the contract could not be played there, so now in-

Two Firms to Operate Until Frost in Fall

More than 300 persons are employed at the Winorr and Esmeralda canning plants on the sweet corn pack, a checkup Friday revealed.

If weather conditions permit late corn to develop properly both plants expect to be in operation until frost nips the crop. More rain is needed for late corn.

This week the Esmeralda plant is running whole-grain corn and potatoes in the mornings, cream style corn in the afternoons and evenings. The Lima bean pack will start in about a week, James I. Smith, Jr., manager said. First narrow grain corn was run through the plant Thursday. Golden Bantam and Country Gentleman were the first varieties packed.

The Winorr plant is packing corn only at the present time. Three varieties, Golden Bantam, Narrow Grain and Country Gentleman are being processed. The plant is canning both whole-grain and cream corn and operating throughout the day and evenings. The Winorr plant will start the Lima bean pack in September. The quality of the corn is good.

RATE CONTRACT CONTEST PLACED IN MAYOR'S LAP

Advocates of Referendum Change Procedure at Last Minute

a special meeting to consider the referendum was uncertain. The ordinance must be passed 60 days before the November election. Since the next council meeting is Sept. 1 it is believed the referendum may be considered at that time.

The petitions were taken to the home of Mayor Graham about 7 p. m. Thursday by Councilman Ben Gordon and John Courtright. Mayor Graham went to his office with the men and before accepting the petitions asked to obtain some legal advice, as the move was unexpected.

Since Carl C. Leist is ill, Mayor Graham conferred with the solicitors' father, Atty. C. A. Leist. Mr. Gordon said it was after 9 o'clock before the mayor officially accepted the petitions and placed them on file. A receipt was asked on the filing, Mr. Gordon said, but none was obtained.

Petitions to place the rate contract before voters at the next election were started immediately after Mayor Graham signed the ordinance.

When asked why the original plans for filing the petitions had been changed, Mr. Renick explained that he believed the first procedure might have been incorrect. "If we had followed the statutory provisions and the matter had been contested, I believe it would have been defeated," he said.

LUTHERANS HOLD OUTDOOR SESSION AT RURAL HOME

Trinity Lutheran brotherhood held the outdoor meeting of August last evening at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Mowery in the Pickaway Plains.

The meeting was started with a softball game that waxed quite warm and could not be completed because of nightfall.

The long tables were spread under the trees on the lawn and under the capable chairmanship of Mr. Mowery, an abundant banquet was served, the menu being made up of chicken sandwiches, baked beans, corn on the cob, sliced tomatoes, cottage cheese, stewed prunes and iced tea.

The Country Gentleman corn, for which the Scioto Valley is world famous, was the liberal donation of Howard A. Orr, of The Winorr Canning Co.

The banquet being over, President Edward Sensenbrenner called the meeting to order for devotional, which consisted of prayer by Dr. G. J. Troutman and repetition of the 23rd Psalm and the Lord's Prayer by the entire audience.

The visitors were then introduced and the usual business procedure rushed through in order to give the balance of the time over to the entertainment feature of the evening. This part of the meeting consisted of telling of stories, true, tall and otherwise.

The members were so anxious to outdo their fellows, that the program ran far past the usual closing time and had to be ended by the edict of the president.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Mowery and sons for making it possible to hold this session.

The next meeting scheduled for Thursday evening, Sept. 16th, will be held in the Parish House on E. Mound street unless later arrangements are made for another outdoor session, in which case announcement will be made in due time.

FRANCIS LITTLE STRUCK BY BOLT AT BARN'S DOOR

Hay Property in Madison
Township Tragedy Scene
Thursday Evening

WIDOW, TINY SON SURVIVE

Cow Victim, Too; Calves
Escape Injury

Francis Little, 29, employe on the Edward B. Hay farm, Madison township, was killed instantly at 5:50 p. m. Thursday when struck by lightning while he was standing in the door of a cattle barn.

Mr. Little had been milking, and it is believed he had just hung up a pail. Sheriff Charles Radcliff, who investigated the accident with Coroner C. E. Bowers, believes Mr. Little was standing under a spouting. The lightning, he thinks, struck the building, was carried along the spouting and was grounded through Mr. Little. Clothing was torn from his body. He was terribly burned, the officials said.

Valuable Cow Struck
A valuable cow, standing at the opposite end of the building, was killed. Calves in the shed were injured, the sheriff said. The Hay farm is about one mile north of the Madison township school building.

Little resided with his brother James, about six miles south of Groveport. He is survived by his widow, Wanda; a four-week old son, Jerry Lee; two other brothers, Henry of Columbus and Charles of South Bloomfield, and his father, William, Commercial Point.

Mr. Little's body will be taken to his home Saturday morning. Funeral services will be held in the Robtown United Brethren church Sunday at 2 p. m. with burial in the Darbyville cemetery by the A. J. Hott Co.

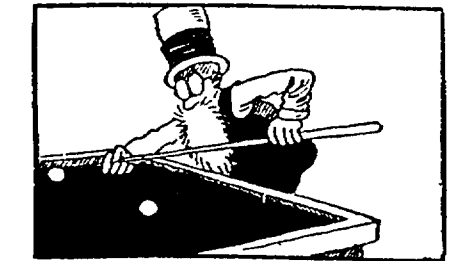

Coroner Bowers returned a verdict of accidental death. The electrical storm struck the northern part of Pickaway county and the southern part of Franklin county Thursday evening. Circleville's highest temperature Thursday was 91 degrees. Showers were predicted for Friday with continued warm weather.

WAGE-HOUR ACT DELAYED

Southern Forces Refuse to Vote in Caucus

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(UP)—Congress moved at top speed under 96-degree heat today to wind up a 230-day session by tomorrow night.

Differences between the house and senate over housing legislation presented the only major problem to be settled before adjournment. The house substituted virtually a new bill for the senate measure, but leaders predicted that a conference committee would reach an agreement soon.

Conservative southern Democrats killed all hope of action this session on the administration's controversial wage and hours bill. They blocked efforts to hold a house Democratic caucus last night to bind members to action on the measure before adjournment.

Quorum Lacking
More than 25 southern Democratic representatives sat outside the caucus room while supporters of a motion to force the bill from the house rules committee vainly tried to rally a quorum. The best they could do was 157 members, eight short of the required number.

The session neared an end during probably the hottest week of a humid Washington summer. Many members already had departed for cooler climates. Some fearing the heat, were attending sessions only when absolutely necessary. One senator, Pat McCarran, D., Nev., was in naval hospital for a rest. Yesterday's 96-degree heat, hottest of the year, brought death to one person in the District of Columbia and prostrated five others.

Container Corporation's Yard is "City of Straw"

Six Thousand Tons Already in Ricks With 7,500 More to
Be Placed; Single Day's Record—24,500 Bales

The Container Corporation's city of straw, to include 13,500 tons this year, is about half completed.

To date approximately 6,000 tons have been placed in the ricks at the plant, Robert L. Ekins, plant manager, said Friday. Work on the ricks will continue until the second week of October.

Considerable change has been made this year in the layout of the ricks. All will be 81 feet square, 33 feet high and spaced 50 feet apart for protection against fire. In previous years the ricks were longer.

Mr. Ekins said each of the 15 full ricks will hold 24,500 bales or 825 tons. Two half-ricks will be erected. The record for placing straw in ricks so far this year is 8,300 bales in one day. The ricks will contain about 1,500 tons more than in previous years.

Refugees From China Find Quakes in Manila

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 20—(UP)—A series of three violent quakes, following each other in rapid succession, shook Manila tonight. The city was thrown into wild confusion. Walls of modern office buildings were cracked and water mains burst. Hundreds of persons, including refugees from war-torn Shanghai were imperilled but apparently there were no casualties.

Refugees from China were disembarking from the liner President Jefferson at the time of the first shock at 8 p. m., Manila time. About 400 of the former residents of Shanghai were crowded on pier seven or leaving the boat when the shock, accompanied by a deep, rumbling roar, was felt. Several of the passengers fainted.

The second shock followed 20 minutes later but was of lesser intensity, as was the third, which was felt at 10:33 p. m.

Weather observatory officials said the first shock was of "intensity six," described as severe. There probably would be a succession of shocks of lessening intensity throughout the night, they said.

Telephone and power services were disrupted in many parts of the city and wide sections of Manila were plunged into darkness momentarily.

The rumbling of the quake was accompanied by the sharp sound of breaking glass as store windows were shattered. Elevators jammed in downtown buildings and the panic of persons trapped in the lifts added to the confusion. A two-inch crack split the front of the modern Insular Life building.

The Rev. August Schneider will officiate. Burial will be in the adjoining cemetery. Friends may call at the Whitel funeral home in Kingston until Saturday noon when the body will be taken to the home in Kinderhook.

Mrs. Metcalfe is survived by her husband, a one-month old daughter, Kathryn May, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Behman Drum of Bethel.

A verdict of suicide was announced Friday by Coroner C. E. Bowers.

BLACK IS SWORN IN AS JUSTICE OF HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(UP)—Hugo L. Black, newly appointed associate justice of the supreme court, took the oath of office last night from Charles Pace, finance clerk of the senate, Black's office revealed today.

Black was sworn in shortly after he submitted his resignation from the senate to Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama, who appointed his wife Dixie Bibb Graves, to occupy Black's senate seat until his successor is elected.

years. Mr. Ekins reported straw was plentiful this year despite the extensive use of combines. All the straw is being purchased within a radius of 75 miles of the plant. The old rotary room of the plant is now being razed. The new rotary room was placed in operation this year. Plans are being considered by the company to install a new machine room next year that would increase the output of the plant from 90 tons of finished paper to 125 tons. It requires 3,000 pounds of straw to make a ton of finished paper.

ACT TERMED SURPRISE

Council Expected To Put
Petition on Ballot

The light rate problem was back in Mayor W. J. Graham's lap Friday after a surprise move Thursday night by sponsors of a referendum against a 10-year contract.

Instead of filing the 10 petitions with the city auditor, as provided by state statutes, they filed them with Mayor Graham to be submitted to council as provided under the Ohio constitution.

Backers of the referendum against rate contract with the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., admitted Friday the "surprise move" was planned earlier in the campaign, but no announcement was made.

Ordinance Copy Filed
The forms of the petitions complied with regulations established by the statutes. A copy of the ordinance, passed by council with a four to two vote, was filed with the city auditor.

Leaders in the drive explained in the petitions that the word "mayor" was inserted instead of "city auditor."

T. A. Renick, attorney for the men attacking the ordinance, explained that under constitutional law the mayor submits the referendum to council. It is mandatory that council pass an ordinance submitting the question to the electors, he said.

Renick said constitutional law specifies no special form of petition, but that there is a difference in the number of signatures needed. Under the statutes signatures of 10 percent of the voters at the last election for mayor are needed. Under the constitutional laws 10 percent of the electors are needed. "We have plenty of signatures for both forms" Renick explained. The petitions bear 670 signatures.

Mount of Praise officials estimated 2,000 persons attended the evening camp meeting service Thursday. The Rev. Russell Bowman, of West Union, preached.

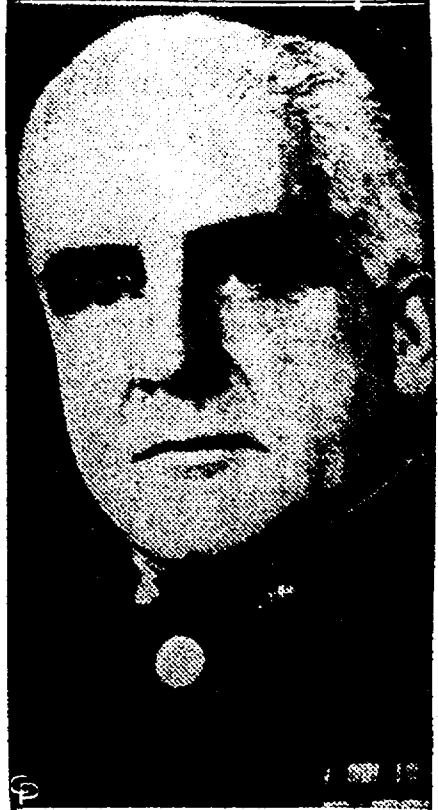

All dormitories had not been filled Friday morning. Officials believed practically all the buildings would be filled before evening. More tents and house trailers are on the grounds this year than ever before.

The preaching service Friday at 8 p. m. will be conducted by the Rev. Charles L. Slater, of Pasadena, Cal., veteran evangelist at the local camp meetings. Other evangelists for the meeting are the Rev. Bona Fleming, Ashland, Ky., and the Rev. Paul Rees, Kansas City.

DYER, KILLER OF THREE GIRLS, MAY VISIT SCENE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20—(UP)—Trial of Albert Dyer, charged with despoiling and murdering three little girls, was delayed today while Superior Judge Thomas P. White decided whether it would be exposing the prisoner to a lynch mob if he were taken to the scene of the crime. Defense attorneys demanded that court be adjourned and reconvened at a lonely place in the Baldwin hills near Englewood, where the ravaged and strangled bodies of the little girls were found.

ON HIS arrival in Shanghai, China, Brig. Gen. John C. Beaumont will assume command of all U. S. marines in the war-periled zone. General Beaumont was ordered to depart aboard the U. S. S. ANOTHER SOVIET PLANE REACHES ARCTIC DISTRICT

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Aug. 20—(UP)—A Soviet plane, manned by four Russian fliers, was flown here today from Velen, Siberia. The men are searching for the six Russians lost in a four-motored plane on a projected non-stop flight from Moscow to San Francisco.

Esquimos reported that a Russian ice breaker, probably the Krassin, was sighted far to the westward of Point Barrow.

The fliers here did not speak English and it was difficult to obtain information from them. Weather conditions continued unfavorable for the searches.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Aug. 20
(UP)—Sir Hubert Wilkins, Arctic explorer, and his party took off today for Fort Smith in the northwest territories, the next leg of their flight northward to search for Sigismund Levanevsky, Soviet flier, and his five companions who disappeared while making a trans-polar flight from Moscow.

DAMAGE ACTION AGAINST COUNTY NEARS ITS CLOSE

Arguments in the $5,000 damage action of Carl Wiggins, Route 4, against the county commissioners, were expected to start in common pleas court Friday afternoon.

Prosecutor George E. Gerhardt and Ray W. Davis, his assistant, rested their case Friday morning. Witnesses called for the county commissioners Thursday included Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Mowery, Wayne Luckhart and Dillon Bockert, Salt Creek township; Sadie Bell, Ashville, and Hiram Lama, Fairfield county. Those called Friday morning were Lee Bockert, Salt Creek township; Willison Spangler, Tilton, and Ray Noonan, Clinton street.

Wiggins sued for injuries alleged to have been received in October, 1936 when an auto in which he was riding was in a mishap at the bridge over Salt Creek near Tilton. He charges the bridge collapsed.

Attorneys for the commissioners allege the boys in the auto had been drinking.

SEVERE FIGHTING GOES ON

Tokyo Determined to Force
Foe "To Knees"

SHANGHAI, Aug. 20—(UP)—A shell hit the U.S.S. Augusta, flagship of Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commandant of the Asiatic fleet, tonight, killing one person and injuring eighteen.

It could not be determined immediately whether the shell was fired by Japanese or Chinese forces. Information was lacking whether the casualties involved American officers, enlisted men, or both.

The Augusta has been anchored off Shanghai, where Admiral Yarnell has been cooperating with American military and consular authorities evacuating American nationals from the war-torn Shanghai international settlement.

The sailor killed was Frederick J. Falgout, seaman second class.

By UNITED PRESS
Big scale battle plans appeared today to be unfolding in the undeclared Japanese-China war.

Severe fighting, although between comparatively minor units, marked the Shanghai situation. A hot revival of air raids ensued. Penetration by Chinese guerrilla troops into Japanese lines in the Hongkew section of the international settlement, led the declaration of martial law there by the defenders. New fires broke out.

Minor Fights Over
Every indication was that from now on, there will be a rapid development in the clash of massed forces, as opposed to the minor units engaged.

For the first time, the Tokyo government voiced a determination, through Premier Prince Fumimaro Koyama, to beat China to her knees.

Gen. Chang Chih-Tsung, commanding the Chinese army at Shanghai, significantly asserted his belief that operations of Japanese forces "will probably end soon and successfully," — but he added a prediction that the war, as a whole, would probably be long-drawn out — further prediction of the ultimate mass scale of the combat to come.

Indications that the Chinese were preparing an intensive bombing of the Whangpoo river to rid the waterway of enemy warships, came in a Chinese demand for neutrals to withdraw from that area of Shanghai. It was rejected by foreign governments, including the United States.

In the Tientsin-Peiping sector, the Japanese gave indication of the apparent strength and readiness to strike in force, by inaugurating suppression of all Chinese activities of which they disapproved. Peiping reported a Japanese plan to make North China autonomous.

Favor Jurisdiction Bill

County-wide jurisdiction of Justice of the Peace Harold O. Ewell and other justices in Ohio to try automobile traffic violation cases was ended Friday when the Lipscher act, passed during the regular legislative session, became operative as law. A 90-day referendum period has ended.

Members of the sheriff's office are expected to use the courts of justice in the peace in the townships in which arrests are made as a result of the law.

Under the new law, justices have jurisdiction in speeding cases and other traffic law violations only in the townships where they were elected.

The law, sponsored by Sen. Maurice Lipscher, D., Mahoning county, had the backing of organized automobile clubs in the state.

Other new laws effective Friday included a new, uniform extradition code and an act authorizing Ohio to enter into agreements with other states for the supervision of paroled prisoners allowed to leave the state where they had been imprisoned.

Junior Fair Aid to 4-H Club Work, Writer Claims

BY JOSEPHINE WOLFE
Junior Member in Charge
Girls' 4-H Clubs

To the young folk of rural communities no greater organization than 4-H Clubs is at their service to help them build for a happy, profitable home and community.

Outside of church and school, probably nothing is more influential in building a rural youth's character and personality than 4-H work. It makes every boy and girl conscientious-minded about his work. It provides a worthwhile recreational program. It supplies correct information. It develops courage, vision and faith.

Probably food and clothing clubs are most beneficial to the girls. Girls are offered a wide variety in the food club, learning the art of cooking everything common to them in many pleasing ways. In this club the health "H" is stressed greatly. In the clothing club one has the opportunity to show her artistic ability as well as the pleasure of creating something which is attractive and useful.

As a 4-H Club Member, one has the opportunity of attending training camps, club conventions, and the like. Here one is instructed in leadership, solving the problems that face him, and learning to use his leisure time creatively. A week spent in any of these is of inestimable value. The association with persons from all over the state keeps one informed of the activities other than those that are near.

Probably the most valuable reward of 4-H work is taking part in the Junior Fair Exhibit at the Pumpkin Show. Here the work of one whole season is put on display and is judged. Those ranking highest in their work are given worthwhile premiums. The purpose of these exhibits is to show the public the type of work done through the 4-H department, and to make the boys and girls feel the importance of their work. Four-H has profited through the organization of a Junior Fair because it has been given a large responsibility of helping make the fair grow.

MARINES REACH SHANGHAI AFTER SPEEDY VOYAGE

"Where's War?", Helmeted Men Cry After Arriving Aboard Liner

800 AMERICANS LEAVE

Sandbag Barricades to Be Armed By Soldiers

SHANGHAI, Aug. 20—(UP)—One hundred and two United States marines from Cavite, Philippine Islands, helmeted and khaki-clad, arrived in Shanghai today, shouting:

"Where's the war?" They were the first of 400 marine reinforcements for the 4th regiment here, and came in the liner President Hoover which made a full steam race from Manila.

As the marines, happy, grinning broadly, came up the Whangpoo to seek "the war," 800 American women and children went down the river to board the liner and sail for Manila.

The marines came up the river in the navy tender Reactor. They poured into a dozen marine trucks, lined up on the water front at the customs jetty where they landed, and drove off to barracks. There they joined the first battalion, which was under full strength.

To Aid in Defense The reinforcements will join the men of the 4th in manning sandbag barricades on the rim of the foreign settlement and patrolling the American defense sector.

That the situation in Shanghai is a dangerous one was evident when the "jirens" came ashore. There was only a small crowd, mostly Americans, to greet them because settlement police had cleared the waterfront of civilians, in fear of a Chinese air raid on Japanese warships which anchored off the international waterfront to fire on Chinese positions and planes.

But there were several truckloads of marines from the U. S. cruiser Augusta on the waterfront to exchange jeers with the arrivals.

Japanese warships were firing at urgent rate at Chinese bombing planes as the American women and children refugees assembled at the customs jetty to go down river to the big Dollar liner awaiting them.

The tender moved out at 8:20 a. m. The Edsall and Parrott, carrying some third class passengers, joined it and all three ships went speedily and without incident down to the President Hoover. The liner took aboard its refugees and turned out into the sea toward Manila.

Gauss Commended Morale in the American colony was high. Nerves were becoming adjusted to the tension and the constant din of firing.

American Consul Clarence E. Gauss won high praise for his handling of a difficult situation.

CRICKET CROP GROWN ELKO, Nev. (UP)—Edgar Littlefield drove into the country and brought back a load of rich, black dirt for his flower garden. Today, instead of flowers, he had a wonderful crop of young Mormon crickets, hatched from thousands of eggs in the soil by the hot weather.

Joseph R. Roof, showed us a relic, which in by-gone days, served a useful purpose. It was known as a reaping machine sickle guard and was a crude piece of casting but answered its purpose in those days, about 75 years ago, or more, when wheat harvesting machines, such as we have today, were not thought of. This harvester was purchased in Urbana, Ohio, in 1856 by John Noecker, great grandfather of Cecil Noecker down on Route 23. It was known as the "McCormick" and was a great clumsy affair and when in action required four horses to pull it. The driver, and what was known as the "rake-off" man, sat near the center of the machine on a double seat. The "raker man" with his heavy rake pushed the fallen wheat from a platform connected to the sickle bar. But this was really a good and rapid method of getting the wheat harvested in those days compared to the hand sickle, first in use.

OPEN LETTERS

TO BICYCLE RIDERS

BOYS, GIRLS: Many of you are taking too many chances for your own safety or for that of pedestrians who take their lives in their own hands by walking uptown after dark. Circleville in the last few months has become bicycle-minded with older folk as well as boys and girls enjoying riding the vehicles, but something will have to be done soon to curb the Barney Oldfields who ride bicycles through the streets of the city after dark as though they were in wide and open spaces where there could be no danger to anyone. No fatalities have taken place yet, but something is bound to happen unless bicycle riders mend their ways. Persons walking along streets have to dodge time after time to escape being hit; motorists not only have other cars to contend with now, but they, too, must try to evade striking someone peddling a 'bike' down the wrong side or in the middle of the street. One suggestion has been made that bears merit, and that is to bar all bicycles from the city's streets after 8 p. m. It is usually after this hour that whole companies of youthful persons ride up and down the main thoroughfares, defying any motorists or pedestrian to stay in their paths. Some parents have gone so far as to deny their children the use of their bicycles after night, and others might follow this practice to guarantee the safety of the children. City officials have said that bicycles might be licensed, but this seems to be going a little too strong. However, unless the boys and girls who make riding a menace, cease their actions something will be done soon to keep them off the streets. It is always better to remedy a wrong before a tragedy happens than it is after a boy or girl has paid for carelessness with a life. A little common sense on the part of the bicycle possessors will go a long way toward an improved condition.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNCILMEN

GENTLEMEN: Is more rigid regulation of Circleville's beer parlors needed? There has been an unusual amount of trouble in certain parlors this Summer. Fights have been staged in several places of business resulting in arrests. There is no reason for such conditions existing in this city. I would suggest you appoint a committee to investigate the situation and work out regulations that will keep these establishments more peaceful. Drunken brawls in Circleville's downtown district are no credit to the city.

CIRCUITEER

TO CAMPERS

FRIENDS: Welcome to Circleville for your annual camp meeting at the Mount of Praise. Splendid programs have been arranged for your sessions. I am sure your visit here will be enjoyable. Visit the downtown district, and Circleville's industrial plants while you are here. Many of you do not realize what a really fine city we have. This district is rich in history. You will find Logan Elm a most interesting Park to visit. Shop in our modern stores and see the many bargains merchants are offering during the camp period.

CIRCUITEER

TO LEGIONNAIRES

VETERANS: The recent Ohio department convention in Columbus should have inspired you to take steps toward a rejuvenation of your Circleville post. I understand that several times during the last year there have not been enough members of the post present to conduct a meeting. This does the organization no good at all. A nominating committee has been appointed to choose officers for the next year. I urge that committee to do its best to place enthusiastic and energetic leaders at the head of the organization. The country needs the Legion and Circleville needs a progressive post.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNTY OFFICIALS

FRIENDS: The plan for one of Circleville's blanket projects under W. P. A. including sidewalk, street and drainage improvements, has been completed. This project, if approved, will furnish work to 60 men for eight months. County and township officials were asked to prepare an extensive project for improvement of roads. I have heard of no developments in the program since the time it was suggested. There will probably be severe cuts in the W. P. A. program during the corn cutting and husking season. What about this Winter when numerous families will be seeking relief? You have an opportunity to make improvements with federal aid and thus relieve the unemployment situation. Better take advantage of the offer.

TO ROUNDTOWNERS

CITIZENS: Mayor Graham and the police department deserve the co-operation of residents in their campaign to clear Circleville of peddlers. Many have been ordered out this Summer. When escorted to the police station and informed that they must obtain licenses, they waste no time in departing. License fees have been placed high enough to keep them on the move. Circleville stores carry quality merchandise, and guarantee it. Peddlers are here today, gone tomorrow. Residents should notify the police department about peddlers in their neighborhoods. Officers are unable to cover all sections of the city at various times of the day. Do your part in keeping Circleville business in Circleville.

CIRCUITEER

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

By CHARLES RADCLIFF

UP AT THE usual hour after an uninterrupted seven-hour sleep, grateful that the telephone did not jingle once after I crawled into bed, a very, very unusual thing in the daily life of a law officer. First thought in the a. m. being a pleasant one of the success of the fish fry held by the Hebron church in Monroe township the evening before, this affair being another of the many which either I or one of the boys covers each annum. Remained at the wee church, where did attend many of our noble residents in years gone by, until after midnight to help protect the receipts of the session against any person or persons who might have thought the church folk had taken in too much of the coin of the realm.

Breakfast the usual hearty one since a sheriff never can tell where or when his next meal will be provided, calls to wrecks, burglaries, etc., oftentimes taking one through the midday meal and sometimes far into the night. Deputy Weaver on a chicken theft call north of the city early in the day, and not returning until late in the afternoon, probably went without the much-needed noon-day lunch. Did take inventory to learn if

Dwight had tried to wreck the courthouse—or himself—again with his tricycle, if everything was okeh in the jail, never giving a thought to the food needed for the day that being capably handled by the good wife and Mrs. Neuding, her capable aide. Then through the courthouse to the office where did greet Deputies Fissell and Armstrong, ready for what the day might hold forth, the former to be assigned routine work and the latter taking over in the courtroom for the ailing, but improving Jake Young, Judge Adkins' able bailiff. Bob likes this job, it being mainly listening to a damage action against the county because of a bridge wreck in his part of the county, and calling witnesses to the stand.

Bowed in fine friendliness to Judge Adkins reporting for the trial, the first with a jury for a long while because of the noise created by the workmen in charge of the courthouse addition, to Prosecutor Gerhardt, on hand to defend the commissioners in the case, and to ex-Prosecutor Davis, who is helping the county. Then came the jurors, all fine Fayette countians, counsel for the plaintiff, and the trial under way again.

The sheriff's day varies. No two are the same. None is no-notorious. The day that gives promise of quiet and peace usually develops into something unexpected. This morning passing quietly, did have a call from his honor, the Mayor, who sought assistance in handling traffic at the Mount of Praise, which did promise. A call from a Walnut township brother of our barrister, Harry Weaver, who reported Columbus men hunting on his farm without permission, whereon did caution him to call the office next time same thing happens. Many believe permission is not necessary to trespass. It is.

Several hours in preparing correspondence to many cities of the nation seeking arrest of a World War veteran, who took advantage of an act of friendship by floating a $75 check on a buddy. Warrants sent to all towns and cities where other buddies, or whom he might call, are living.

The late afternoon quiet following a call to the scene of a west-county tragedy, wondering what might come next. The evening meal passed and a call to a farm where lightning struck down a fine, young farmer. Time to retire, hopeful that the night will be unbroken by one of Earl Lutz' phones trying to leap off the wall in a fit of ringing.

RUSTLE OF SILKS

CHAPTER 28

ANETKA was adamant. All of Mari's pleas for her help, her insistence on Anetka sharing her glory were to no avail. Mari must go on but Anetka was going to retire.

For Mari there was fame; Anetka would have marriage to her. Mari had, at last, found a position as a wine salesman.

Anetka was tired. She had enjoyed working with Mari, was grateful for what the girl had brought her and firm on the stand that she would take only her share of profits to date. It was only fair, she pointed out, that Mari should enjoy the full fruits of her labor. And only right that, having served her purpose, she should go out of the picture.

"But now I'm afraid," Mari insisted. "I leaned on you so much. I'm afraid to undertake this big thing."

Anetka smiled. "I am what you call the morale support. I will always encourage you, Marie. You have the head as well as the talent. Those bankers, they are no fools. They know as much of what you have accomplished as we do. If they trust you and you trust yourself, you have nothing to worry about. With this money, you can hire the people who will advise you. You have the American lawyer, the American secretary and your own, wise little business head. Me, I am scatter brain, yes?"

"You are not! Sometimes you held me back when I wanted to charge more for a frock but that is the very thing I need you for. That is the quality of prudence which I do not have. Tony . . . a man I once knew in America . . . told me that I was too impulsive. He was afraid that someday my impulsiveness would get me into trouble. And, Anetka, my trouble is that I don't know when I'm being impulsive."

Anetka shook her head. "Perhaps he meant in affairs of the heart—"

Mari smoothed the fingers of her glove. "He didn't know anything about my heart," she said tonelessly.

"Oh," the other woman answered in a soft voice, "so that is it! I have wondered often . . ."

Her voice trailed away and Mari knew that she expected her to say something. She had never told Anetka, or anyone else about Tony.

Anetka said very softly, "You loved him, cherie?"

"I thought I did."

"And you think you do now. That was long ago and you were very young. In every woman there are many women, Marie. Perhaps that was another woman from the one you are today. Many things have happened to you; you are not the same girl you were in America. The man we love and know and want when we are 20 is not always the man we'd know and love in later years."

Mari's eyes lifted to hers were dark pools that mirrored the reflection in her heart. She made no verbal denial of all that the older girl said, yet Anetka read it in her eyes.

Anetka's frail hand reached out to cover Mari's. "I know," she said. "Once when I was 20, there was Paul. We were married only a month when he was killed. I thought that was the end, cherie. But that was many years ago and now I have my good Sergei. For us now there is happiness. You will have it, too."

"But I don't want anyone, Anetka."

"It isn't natural, petite. A woman needs a man, at all times. Now you need a man to advise

She had never told Anetka about Tony.

She sighed, "But you are a romantic!"

Mari laughed. "A romantic! Oh, Anetka, how little you know me! All of my romance goes into when I'm training him to be a manager, you can train him to be a fine husband. Then, when I have time and inclination, I'll marry him. Will that convince you that I am not a romantic?"

Anetka shook her head violently. "I do not want that for you. I want you to forget needles and pins and silks and satins. I want you to meet more people, more men. You are not like these nice, gay American girls I have met. You do not have fun. You must go away from Paris. You must have a vacation and do these things, dance and play tennis and . . ."

"Anetka! You talk of vacations and tennis and dancing when I must decide if I am to become what we call at home, a Big Business Woman! Later, perhaps, but now I must be away to my decisions."

"A woman must always consider business secondly, Marie. You must celebrate, you must be gay now for you have made your decision. Now you must think of parties. Did you not have parties when you were happy in New York?"

Mari shook her head. "No, darling, I have never been a gay girl. Mark is the only man I've ever known that I . . . well that made me feel party-ish."

"Do you love him?" Anetka asked directly.

"Heavens, no!"

"He is a good friend," Anetka replied knowingly, "and you must send a wireless to him at once."

"Anetka, Mark isn't a good friend. He likes to take me out when he comes to Paris but his feeling for me is superficial. I know Mark well."

Mari gulped hard.

"Oh, Anetka! You should have told me!"

Anetka shrugged her shoulders. "Why?" she asked blandly.

"Because . . . because I wouldn't have taken it."

"Perhaps your friend in America was right, Marie. You see how you would have hurt yourself? You would have been like the ladies in books who say, 'How dare you?' and you would not be where you are today. And why shouldn't you have taken it?"

Mari felt uncomfortably like an ingenu in a Sunday school play. Nevertheless, she said primly, "Mark didn't do it out of the kindness of his heart. We both know why he did it."

Anetka's eyes lifted to the ceiling in a gesture of despair. "Marie you are not a child. Do not act like one! You must be a woman of the world and you must learn to give the benefit of the doubt to the other person." Those were almost the same words that Tony had said to her so long ago. "And why must you think that Mark is not kind because he is not serious in his manner?"

Mari thought about that after she had left Anetka. She wondered how many times she had not given the benefit of the doubt to others. Perhaps Mark had meant to be kind. She meant to be fairer in her attitude toward him.

When she sent him a wireless to his hotel at Nice that night telling him about the capital that had been offered her, she felt a thrill of anticipation hoping that her wire would bring word that he was coming to Paris.

Drugs That May Be Used for Coloring Hair

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
"OH! THAT mine adversary had written a book."

This lamentation of Job is frequently brought to my attention, as it must be to anyone who appears in print as often as I do.

My attention is called today to a statement I made some time ago to the effect that if the hair turns gray there is no way to restore it, and the only thing to do is "grin or dye it." My correspondent asked: "I have to answer that question, which I should have done in the first place."

It is a very good question because there are a lot of hair dyes on the market that have caused serious trouble. And since your government does not protect you by requiring any cosmetic manufacturer to state on the label of his bottle or package that his product is harmless, and therefore you can't tell whether what you buy in the open market is injurious or not, the best thing to do is to make up your own.

The dangerous hair dyes are the para dyes—paraphenylenediamine. It is used in many black hair dyes, and gives that walnut juice luster look to the hair. It doesn't harm everyone, but since it has caused blindness in certain cases it might be just as well to leave it alone. Of course there is no such thing as "restoring" hair color. The customer often does not like the harsh word "dye," so the cosmetic inventor the softer word recently brought to my attention, as it must be to anyone who appears in print as often as I do.

For a platinum blond bleach the following can be tried.

Calcium perborate 10
Sodium bicarbonate 8
Borax32
Powder soap, enough to make 100
"White henna" powder neither gives white hair nor is it henna. It is a bleach, usually made of magnesium carbonate, made into a paste with a solution of hydrogen peroxide, 17 volumes in ammonia water.

If you want a henna color take: Powdered henna 10
Powdered nutgall 10
Powdered walnut leaves 24
Alcohol24

Macerate for five hours, filter, evaporate to a residue, add: Rose water32
Water, boiling enough to make 100
Add glycerine 2
Filter. Apply to defatted hair and wash with 10 per cent ammonia.

For light brown hair: Indigo 90
Henna 40

For black hair: Indigo 100
Henna 20

We are warned against metallic salts for hair dyes, such as silver. Iron hair color (black) can be obtained with the following prescription:

Pyrogallol 6
Alcohol 5
Acetic acid (90 per cent) 0.4
Ferric chloride 1
Sugar 1
Water 16
Ether, enough to make 100

One of the most attractive parties of the season was the bridge breakfast entertained Thursday by Mrs. Robert L. Ekins, of Northridge Road, at the Pickaway Country Club, honoring her house guest, Miss Mildred Hatcher, of Peoria, Ill.

Many varieties of garden flowers used in profusion on the porch of the club formed a lovely background for the pleasant affair. Breakfast was served at 9:30 o'clock at the card tables, centered with small vases of Summer flowers.

Twelve guests were seated at one table in the dining room for the luncheon served at one o'clock. The table was beautifully arranged, a panel of delicate variegated privet centered with a low crystal bowl of tuberose, scabiosa and delphinium, formed the decoration. Favors of miniature pottery sprinkling cans were at each place, and the place cards and the tallies used later in the afternoon at the bridge game were in keeping with the season.

Mrs. Brunelle P. Downing received high score prize and the traveling prize in the contract bridge games. The other favors were won by Mrs. George Littleton and Mrs. Glenn Nickerson.

Blue Stays in Fashion Parade

IT'S AMAZING—the popularity of blue. Blue usually is a spring color, but this year it has lasted through the summer and is a great pet of autumn.

A pretty little suit that is ideal for the college and business girl is shown here in two shades of blue, and worn by pretty Mary Carlisle, daughter of Anna Q. Nilsson, former screen favorite. The frock designed by Edith Head, Hollywood designer, has a smooth, straight, short skirt with a softly tailored bodice. The neckline is softened by a tied treatment accented with a monogram in royal blue.

Jacket in Royal Blue
A box jacket of royal blue velvet matches a rolling-brimmed sailor hat, all very smart for autumn.

Many of the new daytime frocks have velvet details. Daytime coats, too, often show velvet encrustations. Lyons ribbed silk velvet and velveteen is much used for coat suits. In daytime dresses there is much black velvet, also deep brown and a new grayed green called Armure. A second new color is crimson red, and also there is a current red.

There also are quantities of velvet toques with high bows in the Paris fashion showings.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

- BID THE HIGHER FIRST
- WHEN A PLAYER has two suits of equal length that are "touching"—which means spades and hearts, hearts and diamonds or diamonds and clubs—it is always up to him to bid the higher ranking one first if he intends later to show the other. This enables him to bid the second one last, allowing his partner to take a choice without increasing the contract. Doing the contrary can sometimes force the side too high, besides giving an incorrect picture of the hand.

- The South player on this particular deal did not consider his spade suit sufficiently strong to open the bidding with that suit and selected instead an opening call of 1-Heart. When North responded with 1-No Trump and East passed, the declarer decided the contract could not be played there, so now in-
- jected a bid of 2-Spades. His partner in the North, figuring that the spades were definitely a four-card suit, felt obliged to take South back into hearts at the level of three.
- A club was led by West and won with East's Q. The diamond Q was returned, capturing South's K. After winning with the A, West led the diamond 9 to East's J. When a third diamond was returned, South ruffed and West over-ruffed. Two spades were then cashed, so that the contract was immediately set.
- Had South correctly bid the spade suit first, the contract would have ended in 2-Spades, which could have been made with the loss of two tricks in spades, two in diamonds and one in clubs.

Rain Needed to Help Late Growth Mature, Operators of Plants Declare

LIMAS TO COME LATER

Two Firms to Operate Until Frost in Fall

More than 300 persons are employed at the Winorr and Esmeralda canning plants on the sweet corn pack, a checkup Friday revealed.

If weather conditions permit late corn to develop properly both plants expect to be in operation until frost nips the crop. More rain is needed for late corn.

This week the Esmeralda plant is running whole-grain corn and potatoes in the mornings, cream style corn in the afternoons and evenings. The Lima bean pack will start in about a week, James T. Smith, Jr., manager said. First narrow grain corn was run through the plant Thursday. Golden Bantam and Country Gentleman were the first varieties packed.

The Winorr plant is packing corn only at the present time. Three varieties, Golden Bantam, Narrow Grain and Country Gentleman are being processed. The plant is canning both whole-grain and cream corn and operating throughout the day and evenings. The Winorr plant will start the Lima bean pack in September. The quality of the corn is good.

RATE CONTRACT CONTEST PLACED IN MAYOR'S LAP

a special meeting to consider the referendum was uncertain. The ordinance must be passed 60 days before the November election. Since the next council meeting is Sept. 1 it is believed the referendum may be considered at that time.

The petitions were taken to the home of Mayor Graham about 7 p. m. Thursday by Councilman Ben Gordon and John Courtwright. Mayor Graham went to his office with the men and before accepting the petitions asked to obtain some legal advice, as the move was unexpected.

Since Carl C. Leist is ill, Mayor Graham conferred with the solicitor's father, Atty. C. A. Leist. Mr. Gordon said it was after 9 o'clock before the mayor officially accepted the petitions and placed them on the file. A receipt was asked on the filing. Mr. Gordon said, but none was obtained.

Petitions to place the rate contract before voters at the next election were started immediately after Mayor Graham signed the ordinance.

When asked why the original plans for filing the petitions had been changed, Mr. Renick explained that he believed the first procedure might have been incorrect. "If we had followed the statutory provisions and the matter had been contested, I believe it would have been defeated," he said.

LUTHERANS HOLD OUTDOOR SESSION AT RURAL HOME

Trinity Lutheran brotherhood held the outdoor meeting of August last evening at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Mowery in the Pickaway Plains.

The meeting was started with a softball game that waxed quite warm and could not be completed because of nightfall.

The long tables were spread under the trees on the lawn and under the capable chairmanship of Mr. Mowery, an abundant banquet was served, the menu being made up of chicken sandwiches, baked beans, corn on the cob, sliced tomatoes, cottage cheese, stewed prunes and iced tea.

The Country Gentleman corn, for which the Scioto Valley is world famous, was the liberal donation of Howard A. Orr, of The Winorr Canning Co.

The banquet being over, President Edward Sensesbrenner called the meeting to order for devotionals, which consisted of prayer by Dr. G. J. Troutman and repetition of the 23rd Psalm and the Lord's Prayer by the entire audience.

The visitors were then introduced and the usual business procedure rushed through in order to give the balance of the time over to the entertainment feature of the evening. This part of the meeting consisted of telling of stories, true, tall and otherwise.

The members were so anxious to outdo their fellows, that the program ran far past the usual closing time and had to be ended by the edict of the president.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Mowery and sons for making it possible to hold this session.

The next meeting scheduled for Thursday evening, Sept. 16th, will be held in the Parish House on E. Mound street unless later arrangements are made for another outdoor session, in which case announcement will be made in due time.
